Japs Say All Quiet At Singapor Base

LONDON (CP) — The Singapore radio said today Japanese forces had ceased all operational activity at that naval base.

Fire Hazard Eased

Showers which fell throughout Vancouver Island and the lower mainland today eased the forest fire hazard in the area, forestry officials said.

There were heavy thunder-showers, over sections of Vancouver Island Friday, especially in the Courtenay district.

May Not Be Doubled

TORONTO (CP) — Plans to double Ontario's present 26-ounce monthly liquor ration may "have to be reassessed," Liquor Commissioner W. G. Webster said today.

"I wouldn't be so sure now of that extra bottle," he said.

Aid for Prisoners

CHUNGKING (AP) — An air and ground aid service has been arranged to drop medical supplies into Hongkong Sunday, Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer's headquarters said today. A number of Canadian prisoners, captured in the fall of the colony, Dec. 25, 1941, are believed in the area.

Berlin Swamped

BERLIN (AP) — A mass exodus of Germans from the east has swamped Berlin's crippled rail transport, and virtually soup-less soup kitchens.

These people are arriving at the rate of 15,000 to 18,000 daily, according to British estimates.

United Church Calls For Firm Curb on Sale of Liquor

A strongly worded protest against the lifting of any restrictions on the sale of liquor has been forwarded by the United Church of Canada to Attorney-General R. L. Maitland and the attorney-general of the other provinces today.

The United Church claimed that "the lifted restrictions on the sale of alcoholic beverages, if not guarded at the provincial level, will mean a larger consumption of alcohol in Canada, increasing Canada's now all-time record high 'booze' sales, leading to an increase in drunkenness and other attendant evils."

It urges the Attorney-General to "do everything possible to restrict the sale of alcoholic beverages in your province and thus promote the cause of temperance and good citizenship."

Maitland Opposes Relaxation of Lottery Laws

On the grounds that it would encourage racketeering, Attorney-General R. L. Maitland has written Minister of Justice, St. Laurent opposing any relaxation of the laws regarding the holding of lotteries.

Mr. St. Laurent is considering a suggestion that would make the attorney-general of a province directly responsible for any prosecutions with regard to lotteries by demanding his consent before such prosecution could continue.

Such an arrangement would encourage promoters to organize lotteries and raffles for their own profit, in the opinion of the attorney-general.

Mr. Maitland told the federal minister that the B.C. Legislature had passed a resolution some time ago favoring the holding of lotteries by the state, but added he could see no merit in introducing legislation which would give encouragement to people to promote lotteries on the basis that it is not a crime until the attorney-general has given consent to a prosecution.

He said he could understand that lotteries up to certain amounts for worthy purposes are harmless, and the public in general is in favor of such raffles, but in the higher brackets the dangers of racketeering are very real.

"Many of the objects which are most worthy would be used," Mr. Maitland's letter continued, "and as a result they would probably get a nominal part of the takings, the major part going to organized slick promoters who will use the name of an organization to reap great profit and benefit for themselves."

Air Command May Be Transferred To Patricia Bay

Western Air Command, now stationed at Jericho Beach, Vancouver, may return to Victoria, according to word received from The Times Ottawa correspondent. He reported today that the Air Ministry is now carrying out an extensive survey of R.C.A.F. establishments across the Dominion and it hopes to follow a policy of concentrating peacetime administration as much as possible on properties the air force owns.

Jericho Beach property was purchased during the war and Vancouver interests are anxious to hold the headquarters there but militating against that site and favoring removal to Patricia Bay is the constant complaint of airmen over the numerous occasions on which Jericho Beach is tied up by fog.

R.C.A.F. flying personnel unanimously agree that Patricia Bay is the ideal airfield in Canada. There is hardly a day when flying off its strips is not possible.

SERVE CIVILIAN FLYING

"Meanwhile, the inference in government circles is that, for a time at least, the Patricia Bay airport is to continue to serve the civilian flying needs of the City of Victoria," the Times correspondent telegraphed. "The tri-city Victoria-Seattle-Vancouver service which Trans-Canada Air Lines is inaugurating will make use of Patricia Bay. While the airport is 17 miles from Victoria, officials in Ottawa point out that many of the larger cities, including Toronto and Montreal, have their landing facilities well outside the cities they serve."

Headquarters of the R.C.A.F. on this coast were at Vancouver until April, 1940, when Ottawa made the transfer to Victoria and Belmont House was taken over to house the staff. Following the Japanese threat to this coast by landings in Alaska, Pacific Command was set up and Western Air Command was switched back to Vancouver. Royal Canadian Navy headquarters were transferred from Esquimalt to Vancouver and Military District 11, which had been stationed at Wörk Point Barracks for half a century, was also sent to the mainland.

After a very active campaign by R. W. Mayhew, M.P., R.C.N. headquarters for the Pacific Coast will return to Esquimalt before the end of this year.

Dominion Government May Sell 3 R.C.N. Frigates At Esquimalt

Eight frigates brought after gallant escort duty on the Atlantic seafarers to the Pacific coast for participation in the war on Japan, will probably never serve again with the Royal Canadian Navy.

Besides a "buzz" general at H.M.C. Dockyard where three of the ships were undergoing tropicalization and refits up to V-J Day, reports from Ottawa indicated the ships will be turned over to the War Assets Corporation for disposition.

One Ottawa dispatch said about 45 of the Canadian Navy's fleet of 60 frigates would be put up for sale by the crown corporation charged with disposal of war goods.

This source said the Canadian navy would retain only 15 to 18 frigates in its peacetime fleet. None of the ships destined for further service with the R.C.N. are now on the Pacific coast, the report said.

Tropicalization and refitting of the three frigates at Esquimalt was halted following V-J Day.

UP TO HOWE NOW

Backing up the contention that the frigates here would be disposed of was a report that fate of the vessels now rested with the reconstruction department, not with the naval minister.

R. W. Mayhew, M.P., received word Friday night that his request that work on the three frigates at Esquimalt be continued had been forwarded by Navy Minister Douglas Abbott to Reconstruction Minister C. D. Howe.

Hongkong Prisoners Now at Shanghai

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The majority of Allied prisoners and internees held at Hongkong — many of them Canadians — now have been transferred to Shanghai and other ports to await the arrival of Allied ships, Japan's Domei agency said today in a broadcast recorded here by the Federal Communications Commission.

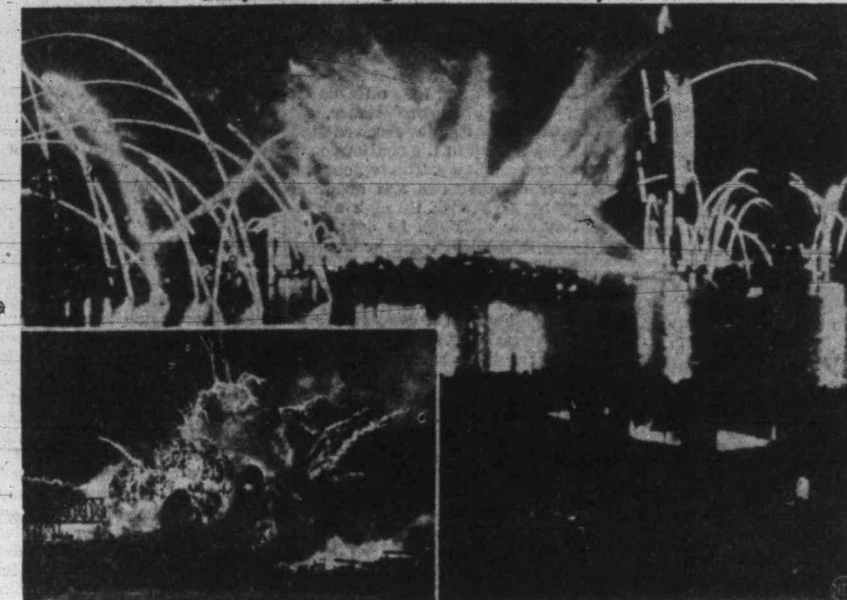

The dispatch said "excellent" treatment is being given the Allied prisoners and internees and that some, with "special" reasons have even been permitted to leave their camp.

Bus Line Decision Late Next Week

The Public Utilities Commission decision on who is to operate the Fairfield-Gonzales bus line and an extension of an Oak Bay line, will probably be handed down the latter part of next week, Dr. W. A. Carrothers, chairman of the commission, said today.

The commission is waiting for transcripts of the evidence taken, which the members wish to go over before handing down their decision, he said.

Pearl Harbor Explodes Again—With Joy

When the flash came that Japan had surrendered, colored flares, fired from every ship at Pearl Harbor, created the spectacular fireworks seen in the large photo. None who saw it could help but be reminded of the grimmer pyrotechnical display of three years, eight months and seven days before, when the Jap sneak-attack created the scene shown in the inset

Allied Prisoners At Shanghai In Good Shape; City Unscathed

The following dispatch, first from Shanghai since its fall to the Japanese, came from the man who was news editor in Shanghai for Reuters's news agency before outbreak of war in the Pacific.

By THOMAS ALDEGUER SHANGHAI (Reuters) — Some 6,500 British, U.S., Canadian and other Allied civilians thrown into internment camps in the Shanghai area a few months after the Japanese opened the Pacific war Dec. 7, 1941, have survived their ordeal little the worse for it.

The majority of them look extremely fit and well. The Japanese guards threw open the camps after the surrender, but the problems of housing and feeding made it impossible for those interned to leave the camps immediately.

READY FOR BUSINESS

Shanghai itself, with its population of 4,000,000 Chinese, who have endured eight years of Japanese militarism, has escaped almost unscathed from the ravages of the war and should be able to resume without much delay its once prosperous commercial life. Today, the streets are gay with Allied flags and the crackle and thunder of firecrackers as the people celebrate in traditional Chinese style.

The vernacular newspapers are reaping a rich harvest from special editions which are selling quickly to a people starved for four years of news from the outside world.

Armed Japanese troops are still on duty at strategic points, but the main burden of maintaining peace and order has been shouldered by Chinese police, who have been reinforced by 50,000 foreign and Chinese volunteers. As a precautionary measure a curfew has been enforced between 10 p.m. and 5 a.m.

Although Japanese shipping in the river and docking facilities were frequently attacked by the

Wants Police to Have More Power To Curb 'Bookies'

Hon. R. L. Maitland, Attorney-General, has refused to agree to a suggestion from Minister of Justice St. Laurent that the matter of prosecution of bookies be made subject to a fiat from the attorney-general of the province concerned, he announced today.

Instead, Mr. Maitland has strongly urged that the Criminal Code be amended to strengthen the hands of the police in the prosecution of bookmakers and tighten up on what he described as a "pernicious racket" rather than making it possible to throw it wide open.

If his suggestion were carried out it would make the discovery of racing sheets on a premises prima facie evidence of bookmaking, in the same manner as evidence is taken of a common gaming house.

"If the federal proposal were agreed to it would mean that the attorney-general of the province would have to give his consent before any bookmaker could be prosecuted in the province, whereas now a prosecution goes ahead whenever the police have collected the necessary evidence."

Japs Report Fire Sweeps Naval Base

MANILA (AP) — The Japanese government reported to Gen. MacArthur today that fire, which started from an explosion, was sweeping the naval engineering school at Kuirhama, nine miles south of the Yokosuka naval base where occupation troops will go ashore next Thursday.

The communication said "efforts were being made" to extinguish the blaze. The fire was stated to have started from a blast which occurred during the storing of ammunition in connection with surrender.

Service stations are needing more help. Some have already taken on members of their staff returned from overseas, while others are waiting for former employees to come back.

No Racing Monday

VANCOUVER (CP) — There will be no racing at Hastings Park on Monday.

At a meeting of the horsemen today it was agreed that no horses would be entered for Monday's program.

No mention was made of a "strike."

The men, two weeks ago, told Manager Sam Randall of the Vancouver Thoroughbred Association that unless he raised purses to a minimum of $800 they would not race after today's program was completed.

It was learned on reliable authority that Victoria's two weeks of racing scheduled to open at the Willows track, Sept. 8, would go on as scheduled, except the opening may be set back until Wednesday, Sept. 12.

Japanese Commit Hara-Kiri Before Imperial Palace

NEW YORK (AP) — The Tokyo radio today said Japanese people were committing hara-kiri "in large numbers" before the Imperial Palace. The broadcast, beamed in Japanese to North America, was recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

"Everything is dark and gloomy" in Japan today, the broadcast related, although Japanese authorities are "hoping that Allied occupation forces will be welcomed peacefully."

The people, "in deep sorrow and gloominess, cannot realize they've been beaten," a Tokyo commentator asserted.

"Groups are committing hara-kiri before the Imperial Palace in large numbers. This feeling isn't understood by the Allies or the western nations. This spirit is deeper than they can fathom."

"Transportation is in a confused state. Homes are leaking with rain. Everything is in dire straits. The Japanese have no baths. Livelihood is very sad. The typhoon has devastated our gardens. Health conditions are bad... the Japanese are tasting defeat."

Schedule of Surrender Set Back 2 Days By Typhoons

By RUSSELL BRINES

MANILA (AP) — Japan's occupation and formal surrender have been postponed at least 48 hours by typhoons, Gen. MacArthur announced today. The surrender signing in Tokyo Bay, scheduled for Aug. 31, will take place Sept. 2.

(An almost simultaneous dispatch from Okinawa, unconfirmed in Manila, reported that first Allied airborne landings in the Tokyo area have been rescheduled for Sunday by a U.S. troop carrier group. The dispatch said the typhoon threat had dissipated. Whether Gen. MacArthur's postponement followed—and overruled—this scheduling could not immediately be determined.)

Airborne Troops To Land Tuesday

The initial landings of Allied airborne troops, scheduled for tomorrow, will take place Tuesday at the Atsugi airfield, 18 miles southwest of the Imperial Palace in Tokyo.

The large scale airborne landings, headed personally by Gen. MacArthur, at Atsugi, and the marine and naval landings at the Yokosuka naval base in Tokyo Bay, scheduled for Tuesday, will take place next Thursday.

Even those plans were tentative. "It is hoped that by that time wind and seas will have abated to an extent that will permit our forward movement," said the supreme commander of the Allied powers.

T.C.A. Planes Will Operate To Seattle In Tri-City Service

As soon as planes and flying personnel are available Trans-Canada Airlines will inaugurate day trips to Seattle, License to operate on the route has been approved.

Seattle will become a link in T.C.A.'s expanding operations but just how the ships will operate is not known at present. The company operates three transcontinental trips daily, but whether these ships would continue to Seattle from Victoria or other craft would be used has not been determined. The tri-city air service would parallel a steamship route, the triangle service, which has meant much in the development of Victoria.

Although this city has had air connections with Vancouver for many years, there has been little flying to Seattle. Eddie Hubbard, the "Flying Postman," maintained a mail service between here and Seattle for many years, in fact this was the first airmail service on this continent. Several companies, using seaplanes, operated spasmodically over the route carrying passengers, but failed to make a success of it.

B.C. Airways Ltd., using a trimotored Ford, were the real pioneers in this business and for some months operated the Vancouver-Victoria-Seattle run. The plane crashed in a fog while on a flight to Seattle and was lost with its pilots and passengers.

Commercial companies have experienced difficulty in getting new planes in recent years owing to the demands of the air forces. New types will shortly be coming off the assembly lines for civilian uses and as soon as the flying personnel can be adequately trained services will be expanded.

Victoria Boy Wanted Tea With A Princess In Paris-Got a Baroness

PARIS (Special) — It was to be a walking shopping tour of Paris, and two Canadians of the Tactical Air Force grinned at the Canada Corner leave centre. The mademoiselles obviously knew Paris, but, apparently, didn't know much about marching, for they wore gay "wedgies" with platform soles.

Several hours and 10 miles later the quartette returned to Canada Corner, and two exhausted airmen slumped into chairs and ordered soft drinks, while the chipper young ladies were arranging to conduct two soldiers on another tour.

"The Parisians are very proud of their city, and these girls enjoy showing the lads the sights, but I don't know how they keep going," said Supervisor Frank J. Flanagan of Toronto, who solves the leave problems for nearly 1,000 Canadians each week, with the assistance of 294 volunteer assistants from Paris families.

"The escort service," he said, "started with half a dozen volunteers to introduce the men to French families, and then to assist them to shop for souvenirs."

ALL THE ANSWERS

Now the service has a unique filing system, with a string of code letters after the name of each feminine guide. They inform the clerk about the color of her hair; her preference in sports or music, whether she speaks English, height, ability to dance, and scores of other points which might be raised by a potential companion.

Mme. Beatrice Poirson, a pretty brunette, who arranges such introductions, and a graduate of the guides, believed the soldiers and airmen get more pleasure from walking and talking with the guides than from viewing the architectural wonders of the city, or the shop counters.

"I think the Canadians," she commented, "are half way between the English and the Americans—all the fun of the Americans and the good education of the English. My only objection is that they seem so hurt when you don't want to drink."

"About the walking tour—oh, yes. But then I only propose walking tours to infantrymen—they always suggest something else," she smiled.

An example of the inquiries received at the information desk, was the matter-of-fact request from Sgt. Robert Martin, 1596 Clive Drive, Victoria, B.C., on leave from the Essex Scottish at Amsterdam. "I see by the Maple Leaf one of the Canadians had tea with a countess—now how about me meeting a princess, or something?" he asked.

Within two minutes he was introduced to Baroness de Seroux, and the two were discussing a tea engagement. Baroness de Seroux represents Canada Corner at the information desk of the St. James-Albany Hotel, where Canadian officers are billeted while on leave.

Claims Penicillin Helps Conquer Leprosy

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao (GP-Anet)—Some "remarkable" results from experimentation with penicillin in the treatment of leprosy were reported today by Dr. E. Van der Kuyp, Netherlands government physician who has been conducting experiments at the Curacao leper hospital at Zaquitto.

Since only small quantities of penicillin were available, Dr. Van der Kuyp said, the experiments repeatedly had to be interrupted, but even so the results were "surprisingly encouraging."

Expect de Gaulle in Canada Wednesday; Seeking New Credits

WASHINGTON (CP) — Gen. Charles de Gaulle, President of the Provisional Government of France, is in the United States to encourage the government to grant long-term aid for the restoration of his country, and he makes no secret of the fact.

It is expected he will make a similar but more modest request of the Canadian government when he visits Ottawa next Wednesday.

The foreign minister, Georges Bidault, and a corps of economic advisers who accompanied him on his flight from Paris, has been working with State Secretary Byrnes and U.S. officials on a concrete plan of assistance.

Gen. de Gaulle received the press Friday in the spacious new French Embassy. Throughout the hour of questions and answers, he spoke French through an interpreter although he does very well in English when he chooses to use it.

The general was perfectly at ease and handled the situation as capably as if it were an everyday experience.

There have been reports that Gen. de Gaulle insisted on coming to Washington at this time in spite of the fact the State Department did not think it a good idea.

Cut Priority Score For Army Discharge

OTTAWA (CP) — Priority point score for immediate discharge from the army has been decreased from 150 to 140 points, Defence headquarters announced today.

Priority point scores are computed on the basis of two points for each month of home service, three points for each month of overseas service and 20 per cent additional for married men.

All scores are computed as of March 31, with no points being allowed for service after that date.

It was reported Friday that the services have been discharging men at a rate of 33,000 a month since June. The lowering of the point score will accelerate that rate for the army.

The army has been discharging at a rate of about 13,000 a month—a figure established to a considerable degree by the demands of the Pacific war. A large proportion of the men brought back from Europe since V-E Day were volunteers for the Pacific. They now go into the demobilization stream with priorities no higher than if they had not volunteered.

The emphasis in returning men from Europe now will fall on those with high point totals. The army recently announced a series of new categories under which discharges would be granted.

6th Division Men Want to Go Home

SHILO, Man. (CP) — Approximately 5,000 soldiers and paratroopers training at Camp Shilo are slightly confused.

Although the war has ended there has been no let-up in their training, started several weeks ago when they expected to be part of the 6th Canadian Division for duty in the Pacific.

However, now many of them say they want to go home and be discharged as soon as possible. Applications for discharge, many from long service men who fought in Europe, have been piling up since V-J Day, it is reported here.

About 1,500 infantrymen, 1,500 artillerymen and another 2,000 paratroopers are all undergoing intensive training. But for what, they say they haven't the faintest idea.

16,000 Quarters

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal notary today told the story of how a resident purchased a $4,000 property here last week, and paid for it entirely in 25-cent pieces. When the deeds were being signed, the buyer pointed to a trunk-full of quarters in the basement of his home, with the comment "there's your money."

It is not known whether the vendor stopped to count the 16,000 quarters at the time.

BRISBANE, Australia (CP) — Two Indian army officers said here Friday the Japanese on New Guinea practiced cannibalism.

Witnesses Say Quisling Wanted Forced Labor Law for Norway

OSLO (AP) — Maj. Fridtjof Hammersen testified today that Vidkun Quisling had requested German occupation authorities to remove Norwegian military officers to Nazi prison camps.

Hammersen, aide to Gen. Nikolaus von Falkenhorst, Nazi commander in Norway, said Quisling wanted the Norwegian officers out of the way "because they were impossible to work with and might make serious difficulties."

Quisling also demanded a forced labor service law for Norway, Hammersen declared.

Twenty witnesses, most of them for the defence, remained to be heard today as the first week of the trial of Vidkun Quisling for high treason drew to a close.

The proceedings Friday were highlighted by the testimony of George Wilhelm Mueller, described by the prosecution as the No. 2 Nazi in occupied Norway, who said Quisling's main objectives as premier were to mobilize a Norwegian army to fight on the side of the Germans and to conclude a formal peace with Germany.

The testimony drew murmurs of indignation from an audience which often has displayed visible hatred for the defendant.

Prosecutor Anneus Schoed, as he promised, loosed a bombshell when he produced documents from German archives and diaries of German leaders as evidence that Quisling had not only known of the impending invasion of Norway in 1940, but had participated in the planning.

SAID HE SAVED LIVES

Quisling, testifying in his own defence, today said the Germans were determined to fight on in Norway after capitulation on the continent, but that he talked them out of doing it.

"I saw the Germans could hold a redoubt here for a long time, but since it would destroy Norway I opposed it," he declared.

Quisling said he had been wary of danger from Sweden and said he believed the Swedes could have driven the Germans from Oslo.

The former Norwegian puppet said that last May Josef Terboven, German high commissioner for Norway, offered to get him into Spain, but that he refused the offer.

Quisling denied that forced labor laws were sponsored by him and declared he had gone to Hitler protesting the measures and eventually got them annulled.

Quisling denied Hammersen's charge that he wanted Norwegian officers deported, said he never had proposed such harsh treatment for Norwegian patriots.

Hammersen said Quisling feared Norwegian Bishop Elvind Berggrav and wanted him sentenced in civil court for resistance to the government.

Quisling jumped to his feet and exclaimed: "I wanted peace and Berggrav helped to obtain it."

SHAMEFULLY TREATED

Quisling told Erik Solem, presiding judge, that he had had "shameful treatment" at the hands of the Germans during the occupation. He said he had had to complain to Hitler about his (Quisling's) Norwegian storm troopers and guards being kept short of sidearms.

As the judges smiled, Quisling said: "My own chauffeur had only three bullets in his revolver. Another of my personal guards was obliged to make do with an empty revolver holster."

Quisling then told of the part he played in the final frantic days of Germany's collapse.

Coming Winter Will Be Grimmer Than Last, Most Canadians Think

By CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

TORONTO—Many an informed prognosticator has warned that, from the point of supplies, this coming winter is going to be grimmer than last—and half the adult population of Canada agree with them.

The public's expectation of shortages dictates the degree of preparation they make, and with this in mind, the institute, just before meat rationing was announced, and before V-J Day, was polling Canadians with this question:

"As you know, there have been quite a few shortages in Canada of such things as coal, and certain kinds of food and clothing. Do you think things will be easier to get this winter than last, harder to get, or just about the same?"

There are not many Canadians who feel that things are going to be easier this winter than last—in spite of all the cheerful war news of the past few months. Easier, 7 per cent; harder, 51 per cent; about the same, 34 per cent; undecided, 7 per cent; qualified, 1 per cent.

And this poll was taken just before Canadians got official notice that meat would be rationed.

WOMEN GLOOMIEST

Women (who, as every salesman knows, do most of the buying), are gloomier about the prospect for the coming winter than are men. Fifty-five per cent of the women interviewed think things are going to be tougher this year, compared with 48 per cent of the men.

Farmers are not quite as pessimistic on this issue as their city brethren, so that the prairie provinces show up as a little more hopeful than other provinces. In all groups, and areas, however, largest single group of Canadians are looking for a greater scarcity this winter than last—in spite of the fact that last winter we were still at war with Germany.

That half of the adult population who answered "harder" to the first question were asked by Gallup Poll reporters to name those things they had in mind. Fuel was put at the top of the list, and was mentioned by over 52 per cent of this group. Food in general, and clothing tied for second place, and the next largest group (perhaps with a canny guess at the future) mentioned meat specifically. Other things which Canadians feel are going to be harder to get this winter than last were sugar, canned goods, butter, textiles other than clothing, soap and shoes.

And nobody said that snow would be scarcer! (World Copyright Reserved)

2 Nazis Arrested

U.S. ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRIA (AP)—U.S. Military Government authorities announced Friday the arrest of Dr. Adolph Eigel and Dr. Robert Hueber, both prominent Nazis. Eigel was still serving as governor of upper Austria, a post he held under the Nazi regime. The army said he was arrested because "his previous position and present influence among Nazis were contrary to efforts to rebuild Austria along democratic lines."

The INTERNATIONAL SCENE

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst

A reader of this column, who belongs to the "Hang Hirohito Club," demands to know why the Allies are coddling the Japanese, allowing them, among other things, to maintain a government containing names that we long have associated with aggression.

This inquiry seems to voice a fairly widespread impression that Japan is "getting off too easy." It probably arises from the fact that the Mikado has been allowed thus far to continue on the throne, since a lot of folk mistakenly hold him responsible for Nippon's sins.

Actually the conclusion that Japan is being coddled is about as far from the truth as it would be possible to get. Even if it were true, let me ask this:

How are you going to police a country, and put handcuffs on malefactors, before you have occupied that country? What more could Gen. MacArthur, or anybody else, have done than has been done?

As matter of cold fact, the Supreme Commander seems to have a very tight rein on the Japanese government. He has been doing a grand job of long distance control, as the results testify. Of course, he could have punctuated his orders with a few more atomic bombs—but there are some who would have applauded such action—but it never has been the aim of the Allies to destroy the Japanese as a race or to enslave them and this was categorically stated in the Potsdam surrender terms.

It's hard to see why anyone should think Japan isn't being dealt with severely enough. She is being stripped of her empire and reduced to a third-rate kingdom—without navy, army, air force, or any industrial equipment with which she might manufacture war materiel. She is making a terrible payment for her misdeeds.

As soon as the Allies have occupied Japan with troops, the government can be reconstructed if it is so desired. The only promise made regarding Hirohito is that he may remain on the throne for the present, but that the Japanese people will in due course determine by vote what sort of government they want. All persons, irrespective of position, who have been guilty of war crimes will be punished.

Barring untoward incidents, the Allied attitude towards Japan probably will be the same as has been seen in the case of Germany and Italy—firm and businesslike, but just and directed towards reform. The world hasn't seen the Allies exhibiting any of the barbaric characteristics which they fought the war to destroy in the Axis and Japan. Even in Germany, invaded and cut to pieces as it was, they have set local governments of citizens to work putting their own house in order. Of course, we mustn't overlook the possibility of trouble in some places as the Allies occupy Japan. The country is tense and the Japanese military might make difficulties. If this happens, the Allies will use the strong arm. Short of that, however, nobody intends to use the lash on Nippon.

200 Divers In New Type Suits Opened Way for D-Day Invasion

By ARTHUR OAKESHOTT

LONDON (Reuter)—D-Day—June 6, 1944—was made possible by some 200 men who, working against time, grappled with death undersea to open the gateway for history's greatest invasion. The story was told Friday, censorship having released the tale of top secret scientific research.

Six weeks before D-Day, a certain surgeon-commander, one of Britain's leading scientific physiologists, was sent for by the Admiralty. He was told the Germans had constructed elaborate submarine obstacles along the French coast, as well as laying mines.

"You've got six weeks to D-Day," the Admiralty said. "Before then you must find out what the human body can stand in the way of submarine blast, devise a blast-proof diving suit, and train men. Mines must be cleared and obstacles blown up."

The commander began immediate experiments on volunteers, himself among them, and discovered an important factor—that an air bubble offered resistance to blast. Working day and night and using trial and error methods, he eventually devised a diving suit made of sponge rubber and kapok, capable of withstanding several hundred pounds of pressure per square inch.

Meanwhile, concentrated training was going on of 200 men especially selected from masses of volunteers for this most dangerous of jobs. Strictest of secrecy was observed on the entire plan, and those "in the know" were very few.

A few nights before D-Day a little fleet crept stealthily across the Channel in the inky darkness and stopped a few hundred yards from the Normandy coast. Two hundred divers clad in their special suits slipped into the sea.

The men aboard ship waited anxiously for several hours while the divers carried out their hurried but methodical work under the sea. There was still no sign from the coast, and the Germans were apparently unaware of what was going on right under their very noses.

Eventually, the stillness of the night was broken by a series of muffled explosions. The divers' work was done. They clambered aboard the ships and started for home under a volley of machine gun and rifle fire from the Germans, who, aroused at last by the detonations, began shooting wildly.

Tourist Traffic U.S. to Canada Booms On Ending of Gas Rationing

By The Canadian Press

The end of gasoline rationing in the wake of victory over Japan has boomed tourist traffic in Canada to prewar proportions. From coast to coast, throngs of U.S. citizens are swarming across the border to enjoy the climate, scenery and food.

A survey today by the Canadian Press brought similar stories from various border points across the Dominion. Motor traffic from the United States in some cases has been four times as great as before Aug. 15, when rationing was lifted.

Here are survey reports from the west:

British Columbia—Only a lack of accommodation is preventing an even greater increase in the traffic, noticeably higher since rationing ended. About 4,000 cars crossed the border in the first week after rationing ended, approximately four times the traffic under rationing. The influx is reported at all points of entry and is expected to continue until school resumes in the United States.

Manitoba—More tourists now than for four years entering province. All are glad to see that meat is available.

Radio Navigation Off Secret List

LONDON (CP)—A 30-pound radio device that enables a navigator to determine his vessel's position by reading two dials and consulting a chart was taken off the secret list Friday night by the Admiralty.

The apparatus, which guided ships from many parts of southern England through minefields to Normandy beaches on D-Day, was credited by seamen with being five times more accurate than any other navigational aid.

The instrument sends out a radio beam which allows the navigator to take readings from the dials. The vessel's position then is determined by correlating the dial readings with a specially marked chart.

3 Fires Quelled Near Ladysmith

Three fires, which covered a total of almost 30 acres of scrub, near Ladysmith, were out or well under control today, the B.C. Forest Service ranger at Nanaimo said.

Biggest of the blazes swept a 20-acre patch two miles from Ladysmith, damaging some second growth of timber. Fifty firefighters controlled this fire. A two-acre fire in the same area also was brought under control. The forest ranger said the third blaze, a seven-acre fire only a mile from Ladysmith, had been put out.

League Palace Ready For Security Council

GENEVA, Switzerland (Reuter)—If the United Nations' organization wishes to occupy the League of Nations' palace at Geneva it could be ready at a fortnight's notice.

Workmen are today busily engaged cleaning and retouching the woodwork throughout this palatial building following end-of-the-war optimism that the new world security organization may take up residence.

The building, although practically deserted, is swept and polished by 20 permanent cleaners and the flower beds and lawns are perfectly trimmed.

B. C.'s No. 1 INDUSTRY NEEDS MEN

The Logging Industry needs men and needs them NOW!

Lumber is urgently required in Canada for vast, nation-wide housing... for farm buildings, school buildings, Civic, Provincial and Federal Construction... for reconversion of old industrial plants and the building of new ones.

Abroad, the bomb-shattered cities of Europe and Asia will make enormous demands upon every lumber producing area in the world.

What does this mean to B.C.?

Before the war, British Columbia's basic forest industry accounted for 40 cents of every dollar earned in the Province. This industry now enters the post-war with its product at peak, all-time demand. Logging and all the diversified secondary industries which stem from it will have to work at maximum capacity to meet this demand. Their ability to give employment to our people will, in consequence, be increased and maintained for many years to come.

More loggers are the key

With markets available, the output of all forest products industries is controlled by the supply of logs. Since 1941 over 5,000 skilled loggers have left the woods for other war duties. It is estimated today that the Coast logging industry can immediately absorb 3,000 men, provided it receives sufficient trained men among them to "balance" its crews.

Men are needed NOW!

The logging industry on B.C.'s Coast pays the highest wages of any basic industry in Canada. Experienced loggers returning to the woods from the armed forces or from war industry will not only establish themselves, they will help the sawmills, the shingle mills, the pulp plants, the construction industry, shipping and stevedoring, railroads, wholesale houses and even retail stores to provide more jobs for others seeking rehabilitation. Inexperienced men wishing to enter the industry will be welcomed and assisted in finding the kind of work for which they are best suited. Information on types of jobs available and working conditions will be given through this newspaper in following advertisements.

For British Columbia there is industrial stability in the forests... and for the men working in them, security, high wages and advancement.

BOMB AND CHARTER

IF AT THE END OF THE SAN FRANCISCO Conference the "Big Three" were found to be in substantial agreement on the main issues governing their association with one another, and if the product of that epochal gathering in the city by the Golden Gate conformed with or improved the Dumbarton Oaks proposals, the world could feel a third global war would be well nigh a physical impossibility. This was the general tone of the comment to which newspapers and public men in many lands gave expression immediately it became known that such a meeting would take place; it varied little during the nine weeks which the proceedings consumed; and mankind's hopes for peace are still based on it.

Nor need certain developments in recent days—such as the political situation in some of the liberated countries or the shadow of uncertainty which seems to have fallen over the various potentialities of the Soviet Union—seriously detract from the validity of those hopes. Conflicts of view, even between the "Big Three" or the "Big Five" which have now ratified the United Nations Charter, are bound to occur. Rather than be unduly worried over them, however, we should marvel that the differences which have cropped up—considering the magnitude of the upheaval to which the world has been subjected in the last six years—have been so few.

So far so good; but the introduction of the atomic bomb has projected a new element into the realm of public discussion which, by the lesson taught through its use on two occasions, hangs like the sword of Damocles over the high resolve of the United Nations Charter. This was a statement the other day from Sir James Chadwick, chief scientific adviser to the British members of the Canadian-British-American atomic bomb policy committee; which declared that, without any assistance whatever from the nations that produced the bomb, it would take other countries only about five years to acquire the necessary knowledge that would give them a basis for its production.

What Sir James Chadwick obviously has in mind is the danger of Germany or Japan producing this horrible contrivance in a future attempt at revenge. But it should be practical to avoid this possibility if the reconstruction of both these former Axis nations is handled wisely—if the mistakes of the aftermath of the first Great War are not repeated. The various Allied missions that were supposed to watch out for the revival of Teuton militarism and its industrial counterpart in the period following the armistice of 1918 were not supported by their home governments. Paralysis in Allied capitals precluded action; it was not the fault of detection. This time the warning is clear. Production of the atomic bomb in former enemy states surely can be prevented if as a continuing process the eventual peace settlement provides for the maintenance of inspection of all plants capable of employment for this nefarious scheme. In other words, the "hard" peace for both Germany and Japan must remain "hard" in this sense of the term.

Freedom of the press within all member countries of the United Nations—in addition to strict supervision of all activities of former enemy states—as well as freedom of communication with the outside world, must be an absolute condition. The newspapers, after all, are much more capable of undermining evil designs and throwing light on the dark places than international inspectors. Recent disclosures of the state of affairs in Argentina lend proof to this assertion. At the same time, nothing in the disturbing suggestion which Sir James Chadwick has dropped should be taken to mean that the atomic bomb has rendered the United Nations Charter more or less obsolete. On the contrary, it should evoke a determination among the peace-loving peoples of the world to make it work, a task which should not overtax ordinary intelligence and self-interest.

HOPE FOR ONE CHINA

ALTHOUGH ITS CONTENTS HAVE NOT yet been revealed, there will be general hope that the new Chinese-Russian Treaty, approved yesterday by a joint session of the Supreme National Defence Council and the central executive committee of the Kuomintang, will relieve tension between the forces of Chiang Kai-shek and the agrarian or Chinese Communist forces in the north. The agreement reached with the Soviet Union at least promises a ray of sunlight to pierce the clouds of possible civil war now lowering on the Chinese horizon. It would be nothing short of tragedy for the Republic to embark upon internal blood-letting at this time when all those energies husbanded from the exhausting conflict against the Japanese are required for reconstruction of the country.

Since the announcement by Mr. Churchill that Generalissimo Stalin had pledged his country's entry into the war against Japan three months before the plunge was actually made, it is safe to assume that the visit to Moscow of Premier T. V. Soong was concerned chiefly with the complex internal condition of China. If that surmise is correct, the contents of the new treaty may very well eliminate unofficial apprehension that the Chinese Communists are counting on Russian help for a strike at their fellow countrymen of the Chiang regime. Again, if that hypothesis is sound, the dangers of civil war potentialities realising full form and rending China would appear to be lessened.

In a situation so full of speculation, one point stands out clearly. The China represented by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is the China which is recognized by the United Nations. That is a major factor in analyzing the strengths of two main factions in the Republic. At the same time, members of the United Nations have been impressed by the fact that the Chungking government is not without its faults. Those defects may be largely remedied by the application of the new constitution promised for China this year. If it extends to the nation—the democratic processes which it has advertised, and if a progressive spirit is expanded, the civil war menace may be dissipated like the mists of the morning. That is the boon for which friends of China will pray. Far better if the energies of that country were turned to the colossal task of developing the great Yangtze and other projects for the raising of living standards for the people as a whole than that they should be wasted in the sterilization of a war among brothers.

TO END DAYLIGHT SAVING?

IN OTTAWA AND IN WASHINGTON the authorities are considering if and when daylight saving time shall be abolished. Indications are that the lawmakers in both capitals will order the clocks back to standard time next month.

When the federal government revokes the daylight-saving Order-in-Council which it passed in the spring of 1941, first as a power-conserving measure for the provinces of Ontario and Quebec and subsequently enforced throughout Canada, the matter will revert to the jurisdiction of the municipal authorities.

Whether the operation of the daylight-saving law was instrumental in the conservation of power in the two highly-industrialized provinces of Canada, or whether it conferred any special benefit on the average private citizen—save in the summer days—will remain a matter of opinion. For the most part, of course, it was a war measure. If it was useful, so much the better.

ANOTHER ENEMY TO BEAT

IN A WORLD WEARY OF KILLING, efforts of Victoria and other cities to combat diseases that claim life or cause crippling have shone as a beacon light of decency. The ready generosity of the public to support those efforts represent an upward striving toward an ideal of brotherhood that has been inspiring.

Few causes which have claimed unselfish assistance in that field are more worthy than that of the I.O.D.E.'s Jessie R. Burke Memorial Cancer Fund, for which subscriptions are being sought here. Through it, help is given to women suffering from the disease or suspected of having cancer. And by it, the essential early treatment which can eliminate the fatal effects and later agonies of the ailment is brought to a greater number.

Vital statistics reveal that almost three patients died from cancer during the five-year period ending in 1941 for each member of the Canadian armed forces killed during the years of the war. That shows the power of this enemy. Each contribution sent to the fund will help to forge the weapons for victory over it.

MELANCHOLIA—WHY NOT?

THE LATEST REPORT ON THE CONDITION of Rudolf Hess describes the erstwhile Hitler right bower as now "wallowing in melancholia" in a military hospital in a small Welsh village. And an allegedly "highly responsible" informant asks: "How can you try a man who is insane?" It might be more to the point to ask now Herr Rudolf could be doing anything but "wallowing in melancholia" in his particular position. Certainly he would be considered "completely off his head" if he were the acme of hilarity and joy as he awaits an undetermined fate. The public of the United Nations will be better pleased by a statement that he has either been put away in an institution for the insane or that he will definitely face trial, than it will be by further reports on his particular depression.

FISH HAWK

WHEELING HIGH IN THE TWILIGHT, the hawk claims mastery of the lake. Supreme, he rides the air effortlessly, his wings outstretched. Gone is the clumsy flapping which started him from his perch, gone the slow, even stroking of his wings as he climbed. Gone, too, is the effeminate, squeaking cry that robs him of complete majesty. Now he is a monarch in the sky, silent, regal, powerful. Below him lies the flat mirror of still water, its sheen disturbed only by the ripple-rings of catfish surfacing. Slowly the hawk circles. Now his eye has picked his prey. Gliding, he moves toward it. Then, in a quick plunge, he plummets to the surface, smashing the quiet as he strikes the lake and flounders out and up, wings beating hard, a fish between his talons.

His is a ruthless efficiency, a controlled power that slumbers latent for the strike. And in him there is a savage kingliness that sets him high among the castes of his species. Here is the relic of a feudal time, when falconry was sport. Here, in the evening drama of the lake, is a glimpse into an age long past but lately glimpsed, when might spelled survival and law.

The Next Test

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

BRITISH COLUMBIA evidently is to provide the next test of political strength in Canada. All the traditional symptoms of an approaching election have appeared in this capital and in the far-flung constituencies of the province. Polling day may be expected toward the end of October.

An election in British Columbia is not quite like an election in any other province. There is a strange remoteness in provincial politics here, a concentration on local issues, a feeling of sharp separation from the rest of the country. The spiritual barrier of the Rockies is eroding with time and experience, but it is still a profound fact in our national life.

In the second place, British Columbia probably is more heterogeneous politically than any other province with many clearly defined areas of special interest which have very little to do with one another. The obscure mining camps of the north, the vast cattle ranches of the Cariboo, the irrigated fruit valley of Okanagan, the dairy community of the Fraser Valley, the metropolis of Vancouver, the logging camps of Vancouver Island, the fishing towns of the west coast—each of these areas is almost a province in itself and there is no common denominator like agriculture on the prairies.

GOVERNMENT in such a province has always been difficult and more expensive than anywhere else in Canada. At the moment, however, British Columbia is enjoying—by general consent—the best government in its history under John Hart. It is a Coalition government of Liberals and Conservatives and will fight the election as such.

The danger that the Coalition would smash up, while very real a few months ago, seems to have passed. Attempts were made within both the Coalition parties to dissolve it—attempts mostly inspired by the federal party organizations which do not like to see party lines blurred even in a provincial government. But when the showdown came in the party conventions the Coalition emerged without damage, largely because it is obvious that its dissolution will almost certainly elect the C.C.F.

AN EXAMINATION of local results in the last federal election would seem to assure the re-election of the Coalition. If provincial voting follows the federal pattern there can be no doubt about the result, but this is by no means certain.

The C.C.F. has profited in British Columbia, up to now, by the split in the anti-Socialist vote and for the first time this year must face a general election in which the old parties go to the polls as one. This admittedly is a stern test of C.C.F. strength and Socialist leaders are making no vocal claims of victory yet. But they are organizing intensively and they say that if their vote is not seriously split by the Communists, as in the federal election, they will make a good run. They do not deny that the failure of their party in the federal poll was a grave disappointment and heavy blow to them.

THE GOVERNMENT which prepares now to appeal to the people cannot be described accurately as a Liberal or a Conservative government. It is primarily a John Hart government and, without the cement of his personality, could hardly hold together overnight. Mr. Hart is a Liberal but up to recent years had been credited with a strong vein of Conservatism, especially in financial policy. Yet anyone who observes the record of his government must agree that, for an expert financier and businessman, he has been one of the most radical reformers in the history of the province. Under him British Columbia has developed what are probably the largest social services in the nation and expenditures which would doubtless have alarmed him a few years ago. Now it is embarking on a large plan of public ownership in the public utilities field, proposes great highway developments and will invest heavily in forest conservation. It is on this general policy of expansion that the government will fight the election.

STRAIGHT ACROSS all these plans, however, cuts the issue of federal-provincial relations and the federal government's plan for revising them. For Mr. Hart this poses a serious dilemma. He is genuinely anxious to facilitate a solution of this basic Canadian problem, he admits the proposition that rich provinces like British Columbia must help the poorer provinces, but he has always opposed any permanent surrender of the provincial income tax.

Whether the federal proposal that the tax be surrendered for a trial period of three years will satisfy Mr. Hart remains to be seen. He has made no commitment and it will not be surprising if he makes none before his provincial election. If possible, it seems, this issue will be kept out of the campaign and out of partisan provincial politics. If this can be managed the prospect of a settlement as between British Columbia and the Dominion will be greatly improved.

The provincial government certainly wants such a settlement for it knows; none better, that even with its enormous wealth and superior living standards, British Columbia cannot afford to levy a provincial income tax on top of the federal levy. Even the British Columbia electorate, used as it is to high taxes and big budgets, would not stand for that.

General Maxime Weygand, at the trial of Marshal Petain, assumed full blame for the armistice with the Germans. That's enough to make Hitler turn in his grave... if he has one.

SHIPS FOR TRAINING

Would not this be a suitable time to utilize one of our spare ships, now being put out of commission, as a training ship? It would be so much less than for the boys than an industrial school. And we all know what fine sailors these ships turn out, some of the finest in the world. These ships provide an excellent education for many trades as well as seamanship.

SGT. WILKINSON EXPLAINS

May I be permitted space in your paper for the following? Reference to article "Chiropody Act Probe," which appeared in your paper of Aug. 21, page 10, in which I am afraid I was misquoted. May I repeat my evidence to the best of my ability, as follows:

That I had made an extensive study of disorders and disabilities of the feet for 12 years previous to the outbreak of the war. That through my own choice I had elected not to take the course in chiropody which was given by the army. That in the early part of the war, and then again this year, I had taken all the necessary examinations and found qualified by the army board of examiners (who, incidentally, are medical officers and specialists).

Since that time I have operated the Foot Clinic in this area with all its various treatments which come within the power of my capacity, and also for the making of special foot casts and the manufacture of the various types of supports, etc.

I also stated that I hoped to attend my recognized school or college of chiropody with the view of qualifying for civilian practice, in accordance with the Chiropody Act of British Columbia, and further that it was my opinion that the Canadian government should in some way help and enable discharged men who had qualified, and had been doing this type of work for the forces, to be in a position to attend a recognized school or college of chiropody, so that they could also comply with the act for civilian practice.

BOILERMAKERS' SPLIT

Reading a Canadian Press release of August 21, covering the present, deplorable split in the boilermakers' union, Victoria, I find it difficult to believe my eyes at sight of the statement made by the ousted president, F. E. Cardwell, that his union has for the past six months withheld their payment of dues to the Shipyard General Workers' Federation "because the Main Deck, shipyard unions' paper, was being used for political purposes by the L.P.F."

This is an unbelievable situation in view of the fact that the political party of Mr. Cardwell's allegiance tried to use the entire membership of his union, the federation, and the Canadian Congress of Labor for its own political purposes in an effort to force all Canadian trade unionists into the ranks of the C.C.F. party. Of course, they didn't get away with it and never will. But it's easy to imagine what Mr. Cardwell would do with the Main Deck columns if he were editor.

If any one wants to see a trade union paper really used for political purposes, let him read any issue of the Star, the organ of the C.C.F.-controlled United Steelworkers' Union, and then draw his own conclusions about many things, including the American Can, strike issue. Where is Mr. Cardwell's logic? And where can he find a shred of evidence that any such tactics have ever been used by the L.P.F. in any trade union paper?

But this is an old trick that guilty ones try to play in accusing others of their own guilt. Personally, I think Mr. Cardwell and his gang are doing a fine job, and the faster and more illogically they do it the better for Canadian unity and labor solidarity in the end. For then workers and public alike will that much earlier recognize just who is trying to destroy all the gains that have been achieved by labor, the people, and all democratic forces.

be rendered him now to further his musical career, should be

Mark 25th Anniversary

On Aug. 30, Mr. and Mrs. W.
N. Lenfesty, 126 Douglas Street, will be at home to their friends, from 3 to 5 in the afternoon and from 8 to 10 in the evening, on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mr. Lenfesty is a pioneer resident of Victoria. He came to the city from Quebec, in 1899, traveling across the United States to San Francisco, and by the old paddlewheel steamer "Dakota" to Victoria, landing at Hudson's Bay Company wharf in the Inner Harbor. In 1899, with a partner, he opened the sporting goods store of Lenfesty and Pichon, which for 36 years was a rendezvous for fishermen and hunters from all over Canada and United States. In 1925 Mr. Lenfesty re-

Canada Took Over Atlantic Convoys In Later War Years

"Canadians should be proud of the fact that Canada, during the later war years, having through superhuman efforts provided sufficient ships and seamen to protect the Atlantic convoys, virtually took over the job of ensuring the safe delivery of vital war material to Europe," said
Cmdr. Jeffrey Brock, R.C.N.V.R., recently appointed senior officer,
Western Divisions, R.C.N.V.R.,
who was in Victoria yesterday.

On his first inspection trip of all R.C.N.V.R. divisions and Sea Cadet camps from Port Arthur to Victoria, accompanied by Lieut.
Thomas Benson, R.C.N.V.R., Cmdr. Brock said discharge and demobilization of navy personnel was proceeding apace. Since V-J Day there had been an increase in the demobilization program which was already going into effect, so that the rate of discharge was increasing every day.

He met the commanding officer of H.M.C.S. Malahat, Lt.
Cmdr. Douglas Scott, R.C.N.V.R., and officials of the Navy League, and also discussed with other naval authorities questions pertaining to demobilization and rehabilitation of navy personnel.

On the mainland, Cmdr. Brock inspected the large Sea Cadet camp at Whytecliffe, from which Victoria's Rainbow I Corps had just returned, and termed it "as fine as any camp in Canada."

Development of the sea cadet movement in Canada during the last few years was a marvelous thing, he said. In Winnipeg, where he was a sea cadet himself 20 years ago, the corps had jumped from 30 then to 2,000
now and throughout Canada
there was at present a total of 15,000 cadets.

Affiliated with the navy as the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps, the movement would continue a sports afternoon Thursday.

Grand winner of the afternoon was seven-year-old Betty May King, who placed first in four of the tumbling, diving cartwheels, high jumping and racing events.

During the season, special attention has been given to older children. Activities for them have included softball, tumbling, folk and tap dancing, leather work, and a model airplane club, while for the younger children the activities have consisted of paper work, singing games, sand craft and stories.

Under the supervision of Robert Mines, assisted by Mrs.
Bernice McDonough and Miss Bonnie Dymond, the special instructors have been: Mrs. Rena Patenaude, paper work; Mrs.
Dorothy Davies, drama; Miss Mary Hummel, sewing, and Bible stories given by various churches.

that relationship in peace, Cmdr.
Brock said. "In peacetime, although the naval services give every assistance, the mainstay of the organization across Canada is a voluntary body, the Navy League of Canada, which can only be maintained by the support of the public."

"Although the Sea Cadet movement is not intended to be any military type of organization, we are very proud that more than 5,000 ex-sea cadets joined the naval service and made a large contribution to Canada's war effort," he added.

Son of Capt. E. H. Brock, R.C.
N.V.R., now retired, and nephew of Commodore E. R. Brock, R.C.
N.V.R., C.O. Naval Divisions, Toronto, Cmdr. Brock, who has been in the naval reserve since 1932, was loaned to the Royal Navy in 1940 and commanded four R.N. ships before returning to Canada to command a Canadian escort group.

Price Controls to Stay; Meat, Sugar, Butter Rationing

OTTAWA (CP) — Premature removal of price controls in Canada would invite chaos such as followed other wars, Finance Minister Isley said Friday evening in a broadcast with Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman.

In a 15-minute broadcast over the CBC, Mr. Isley and Mr. Gordon outlined why price controls had to be retained, and why it was necessary to continue food rationing. Their speeches were rebroadcast to western Canada.

"While victory in the Pacific marks the end of active hostilities, it is just the beginning of the end of the war," said Mr. Isley. "On the economic front we now can move rapidly toward the day when shortages of civilian goods will be overcome and the danger of inflation will be past."

"We are on the last lap in our national effort to keep stability in our prices and incomes, and in our economic system generally, and to avoid the chaos which has usually been the aftermath of war, but we cannot reach our effort until we have reached the goal."

Mr. Isley confirmed that meat rationing will go into effect "soon," and said sugar and butter rationing will continue, because there is not enough to go around under unrestricted distribution.

The minister said victory over Japan had little immediate effect on the world shortage of foodstuffs.

"If we are going to help meet the needs of the hungry areas, Canada will have to control her own consumption," he said.

"We cannot ignore our responsibilities to those who fought the good fight under enemy occupation. We cannot justify refusal of assistance to our Allies in their extremity."

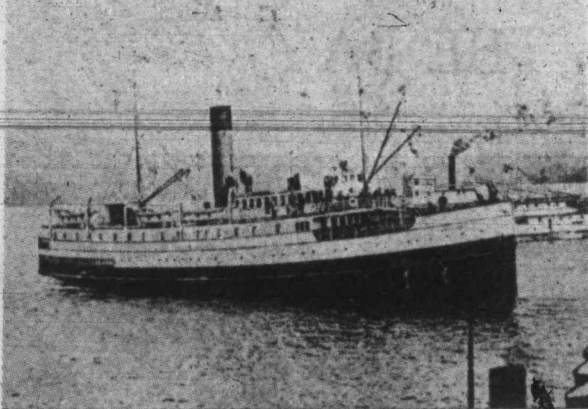

Mr. Gordon said that perhaps the most important world shortage was that of foodstuffs, and Canada had a share in meeting this shortage.

He doubted if Canadians generally realized how far the Prices Board had gone in removing production restrictions. In the last 18 months the number of production restrictions had been reduced from 300 to 64.

He said the extension was being made so retailers, who have to lay in heavy stocks of lamb in the early part of that week to provide for customers' requirements over the Labor Day week-end, will be able to clear out their stocks on the same price basis at which they were purchased.

The wholesale price schedule will terminate as scheduled Aug. 31.

Greek Interests Buy Ss. Camosun

Union Steamship Company of B.C. Ltd. announce that the coast steamer Camosun, which many years has been operated in the northern British Columbia coast service, has been sold to Greek interests.

The Camosun is now being overhauled at the B.C. Marine Ways at Vancouver under inspection of the British Corporation Registry of Shipping and Air-planes and on completion of the repair work will set sail for Greece via the Panama Canal.

The skipper, chief officer, chief engineer and boatswain, all Greeks, are aboard the ship, and a Greek crew is coming from New York.

Built at Ayr, Scotland, in 1913, the Camosun was used in the Orkney Islands service.

Launched as the Favorite, her name was later changed to St. Margaret. More than 20 years ago she was bought by Canadian National Steamships and brought to this coast. Her name was changed to the Prince Charles, and she went on the Queen Charlotte Islands run. This service was maintained for some years.

The ship was then sold to Union Steamships, and her name changed to Camosun. Recently she was offered for sale to make place for newer tonnage for the line's B.C. coast fleet.

Prisoners of Japs, C.P.R. Agents Soon Will Return Home

Official word that Canadian prisoners of war and civilian internees held by the Japs probably would be returning home directly across the Pacific was good news for the Canadian Pacific Railway, three of whose Oriental representatives were in enemy internment camps at Shanghai and Hongkong when peace came.

Still in Jap hands on V-J Day were David Drummond, Oriental manager at Hongkong; A. J. S. Parkhill, agent freight and operating, and A. M. Parker, general agent, passenger, both at Shanghai.

With them were their families, Mrs. Drummond and her daughter, Mrs. E. A. D. Green, at Camp Stanley, Hongkong, and Mrs. Parkhill at Chapel civil assembly centre, Shanghai. Also at Hongkong was Mrs. Sheppard, wife of J. O. Sheppard, former freight agent at Hongkong, who died in internment camp in 1942.

Although no recent contact has been made with these prisoners it is believed, they are all well, and everything possible is being done to expedite their return. The seven C.P.R. people and their dependents still in Japanese hands are part of the 25 members of the Oriental staff who were taken at their posts when Shanghai, Hongkong and Manila fell. Thirteen were repatriated earlier and five died while prisoners.

Finn Says Fishery Inspection Fleet May Be Doubled

Proposals to double the present deepsea fleet of Dominion Fisheries inspection ships, to add several vessels capable of deep-water service, and to increase the number of river patrol boats are disclosed by Dr. D. B. Finn, deputy minister of fisheries, Ottawa, now on the coast.

The present deepsea fleet on this coast consists of the two seagoing vessels Ms. Kitimat and Ms. Nitinat.

Postwar plans also include considerable expansion of its inspection services, Dr. Finn said.

Possibility of developing an important canned tuna fish industry on the B.C. coast is foreseen by Dr. Finn.

He announced that there probably will be more canned salmon for Canadian families this year because of the bigger pack and relaxing of controls.

Dr. Finn, who is conferring with fishery officials on the mainland, is expected to visit Victoria early next week.

New Truck Rationing Order Effective

OTTAWA (CP) — Munitions Minister Howe announced Friday night a new truck rationing order which dealers in new trucks will be allowed to distribute them on the basis of priority certificates issued by tire rationing officers.

Effective Sept. 1, the new order replaces the system in effect since 1942 under which purchasers were required to apply directly to the motor vehicle controller for permits to buy new trucks.

Two general priority categories are established under the order, designed to decentralize administration and speed up the distribution of new trucks, which from now on will come into dealers' hands at an accelerated rate.

No New Ferry Now For Okanagan Lake

Hopes of the Kelowna Board of Trade for obtaining a second ferry to serve across Okanagan Lake from Kelowna to the west side of the lake within the next year or two are doomed to disappointment, Hon. Herbert Anscomb, minister of public works, said today.

Mr. Anscomb said that a ferry had been on order some time for Kootenay Lake but it would still take another 15 months to get it built and delivered.

The Kelowna Board of Trade is inaugurating a campaign to get a second ferry, declaring that anticipated motor traffic with the lifting of gasoline rationing will prove too much for the ferry now operating.

"No matter how heavy the traffic may become in the immediate future, I'm afraid there is nothing we can do to obtain any more ferries to handle it," the minister said. To date the Kelowna group have made no formal application for the additional ferry.

Heavy Tuna Hauls For Packers Here

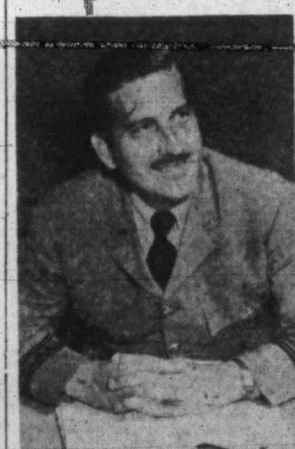

A total of 34,100 pounds of tuna was unloaded at B.C. Packers Ltd., Ogden Point, Friday night. The total was made up with 15,500 pounds from Capella I, 3,600 pounds from Sheila Mae, 15,000 pounds from Tódie.

Fishing vessel Deerbell came in today with 10,000 pounds of tuna and is expected to land her catch this afternoon or Sunday. Maple Leaf C., B.C. Packers' vessel, unloaded 10,000 pounds of salmon today.

At the Western Fish Co. Ltd., foot of Yates Street, a landing of 13,000 pounds of tuna from Mother III, Olaf Antonsen, Prince Rupert, skipper, made the fourth of four landings since Aug. 21, which total 41,500 pounds of tuna.

Some 10,000 pounds of tuna were landed at B.C. Packers Thursday night from the fishing vessel Violet T., in from a nine-day fishing trip off the coast.

Leaving R.C.A.F.

Sgdn. Ldr. Archie W. Smith, formerly of Victoria, will be retired from the R.C.A.F. Sept. 1. He has been on active service for four years with the R.C.A.F., serving at Trenton, Calgary and Ottawa before being appointed as deputy senior organization officer at Western Air Command, Vancouver, five months ago.

Before joining the air force, he was employed with the B.C. Electric Railway Company where he was supervisor of outside sales staff in the merchandising department. He is returning to the company's service here.

BRIDE MUST SOLVE OWN WOES

A friend of mine, who has a large family of girls, takes each one of her daughters aside on her wedding day and says to her: "You are starting life on your own now. Work it out for yourself. Don't come running back home too often. And don't tell me about your husband's faults. I don't want to know them."

If every mother would give her daughter this wise advice on her bridal eve, and every bride would lay it to heart, it would save many a marriage from going on the rocks. For without knowing it and without intending it, mothers do more to break up their children's homes than all other causes combined, and they should be named as the co-respondents in most divorce cases.

This is not because mother is a fiend who finds a sadistic pleasure in destroying her daughter's happiness and alienating her from her husband. On the contrary, mother is a good, kind, Christian woman who wouldn't wilfully torture a fly, but she cannot bear for her petted and pampered darling not to have everything she wants, whether her husband can afford to give it to or not, or to have to face the responsibilities of life and pull her weight in the boat.

So when Isabel comes weeping to her and sobs out on her breast how cruel John is when he won't buy a mink coat, or 'tells of the terrible things he said to her when her pie fell flat, mother poor-darlings her and pities her until she makes her feel like a martyr.

Of course, every married couple have to go through a period of adjustment. It is impossible for two people of different sex, of different heredity, brought up in different environments, to always see eye to eye with each other. They have to learn to give and take and compromise their differences and, nine times out of ten, they will do this if they keep their troubles to themselves.

But when Isabel runs whining to mother with her complaints about John's imperfections, and recounts his every fault and foible that grow bigger and bigger as she enlarges upon them; when she moans out that she is nothing but a slave to a heartless tyrant, who expects her to get up and get his breakfast in the morning and refuses to take her stepping every night, mother pours over her gallons of sympathy, and the end of another marriage is in sight.

It is because girls know that they can run back home to mother when the gilt begins to rub off of the ginger bread of their romance, and they find out that marriage means work and worry and dealing with a human instead of a cinema hero, that makes so many young wives quit, instead of trying to make successes of their marriages.

There would be very few divorces if the Isabels knew that there would be no welcome on the old home doors for them and that their mothers, instead of pitying them, would tell them to go back to their own homes and behave themselves, and act like adult women instead of spoiled babies.

Another Policyholder Reports...

"WHEN DISCUSSING life insurance with two of my friends who are fathers of young children, I found that they were particularly interested in learning that I own a policy in The Mutual Life of Canada called 'FAMILY INCOME,' which will provide an income of $100 a month for my wife at my death. This income will continue until I would have been 65 had I lived, and then, she will receive $10,000.

"OF COURSE, I have made sure, through another policy in The Mutual Life, that she will also have a certain amount in cash with which to pay bills and to provide a reserve fund for emergencies.

"I DISCOVERED during our conversation that these fathers were not aware that it was possible to obtain a policy with the benefits provided by the Family Income contract, and both of them have now interviewed my Mutual Life representative, whom I recommended to them, and discovered how the policy will fit into their insurance programs."

Roll Call Soon For 10,360 Students In Victoria Area

The stir of autumn is in the air and to thousands of Victoria school children it means forsaking holiday activities for the familiar pattern of books, homework and box lunches come Sept. 4.

They will come from farms, up-island cities and towns where they have visited or just from city beaches to resume their studies. Many will leave summer jobs.

Although no definite figures on enrolment for the fall term are as yet available, 10,360 students in the Greater Victoria area are expected to be at their desks.

Victoria College and Esquimalt High School are anticipating increases, with the college enrolment of last year 260 and its expected enrolment this year placed at 300. Returning servicemen will contribute to the college increase.

With but 14 grade 12 pupils leaving Esquimalt High School in June and 83 grade 9 pupils expected this September, last year's enrolment of approximately 130 is expected to jump to near the 190 mark.

SHIPYARD LAYOFFS
Whether shipyard layoffs will have any effect on school enrolment in Esquimalt is not yet known, although one teacher stated that any effect would be noted throughout the year and not immediately.

Enrolment at Victoria city schools, which include one high school, one junior high and 13 elementary schools stood at 4,967 in June and the figure for this year is expected to be about the same. H. L. Campbell, municipal inspector of schools, said today.

Oak Bay's one high school and two elementary schools are expected to have about the same enrolment as last year, with perhaps a slight increase. Enrolment was 1,204. Enrolment at Saanich's three high schools and 14 elementary schools totaled 3,027, but an increase is expected this year.

Lectures will begin at Victoria College, Sept. 24, after three days of opening ceremonies and placement in classes. The provincial Normal School will begin its fall term at Memorial Hall, Sept. 10.

Complete and in some cases improved lines of all school supplies are reported with stocks of notebooks, erasers, pencils and other required items on hand at local stores. Textbooks are available although some editions are held up through paper shortages, it is reported.

Grants Injunction
In Union Dispute
An ex-parte injunction ordering that Frederick E. Cardwell, W. G. Latta and Percy Ross, president, vice-president, and secretary-treasurer of the Victoria Boiler-makers' Union Local No. 2 are restrained from acting in those offices and that James D. Smith, James Walsh, F. H. Dyke, J. R. Fell, E. Lamone and E. Taylor take control of the affairs of the union was granted in Supreme Court chambers by Mr. Justice J. D. Wilson Friday.

Arising out of the dispute in the union over the dismissal of Cardwell, Latta and Ross from their offices, because of alleged breaches of the constitution by not sending in the union's dues to the Shipyard General Workers' Federation of British Columbia, the injunction was a surprise move by the federation supporters to make their right to the union property legal and binding.

Union Council Drafts Contract For 30-Hour Week In Shipyards

Calling for a 30-hour work week with no reduction in take-home pay "should labor conditions demand it," a draft agreement has been prepared by the Victoria Joint Shipyard Council for submission to member unions for ratification and for negotiations for new labor contracts between the unions and Victoria shipbuilding firms.

The proposed agreement also contains clauses for a 40-hour week alternative to the 30-hour week.

The draft, if effected, would reduce the working hours but not the salaries of shipyard workers from 44 to 40 hours per week, or, if jobs were lacking, reduce the hours of work further to 30 per week.

The proposed contract suggests shifts of from 8 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. with from noon to 12.30 off for lunch; or from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. and from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. if two shifts of six hours each are required.

WRITES PRIME MINISTER

The suggestion that the shipyard work shift be reduced to six hours is also contained in a letter from the council sent to Prime Minister King and other Dominion cabinet ministers, Premier John Hart, Mayor Percy George and R. W. Mayhew, M.P.

"The council... having reviewed the disastrous results already apparent from the sudden curtailment of shipbuilding in British Columbia, strongly protests the lack of foresight and planning on the part of our federal government in that no provision has been made for conversion of these industries to peacetime needs, or to subsidize them until such time as this can be done," said the letter. "The sudden termination of contracts, resulting in the layoff of thousands of workers, has caused panic in the minds of many of

The remains are deposited at Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel and the funeral announcement will be made later.

Family Relations Course to Open

First full course on home and family relations to be given in Victoria schools will be initiated at Victoria High School this fall for grades 11 and 12, H. L. Campbell, municipal inspector of schools, said today.

The course will involve a certain amount of sex education but it is not in itself a specific course in sex education, Mr. Campbell said and added that no such course was anticipated in the near future.

The course to be offered is one prescribed by the Department of Education. For several years units in a number of home economics have dealt with home and family relations but this will be the first full course, he said.

In commenting on a Vancouver report that H. N. MacCorkindale, superintendent of schools, had said sex education, handled properly and scientifically might eventually be taught in Vancouver schools, Mr. Campbell said, "It is my opinion that instruction in sex education should form a part of the regular courses in health and in home economics; until more information is available on the effectiveness of a specific sex education course, I would hesitate to advise the giving of courses solely devoted to that subject."

With regard to the home and family relations course, Mr. Campbell favored the bringing in of specially qualified doctors and nurses for any specific aspects of sex education.

Rollie O'Leary Gets Promotion

R. J. "Rollie" O'Leary, Canadian Pacific press representative, Vancouver, will leave for the east next Tuesday to take over a higher post in the company's press service at Montreal.

The C.P.R. is reorganizing its press and public relations service under Hugh J. Campbell, formerly of Vancouver and Winnipeg and more recently chief of the Canadian government's War-time Information Board Office in Washington, D.C.

Mr. O'Leary's promotion is the first of a number of changes expected within the next few weeks in the C.P.R. press and public relations personnel across Canada.

New Salary Scale

The new salary schedule for rural teachers which was passed at the last session of the Legislature will affect more than 400 teachers, Hon. H. G. T. Perry, Minister of Education, said today.

The salary assures $1,100 to beginning teachers in the elementary schools, $1,200 to those with their certificates, $1,400 for a junior high school teacher and $1,500 for a senior high school teacher.

There are 1,039 rural teachers in the province, Mr. Perry said, and 423 were getting less than the new minimum last year.

Lt. Col. McCannell Home on Leave

Lt. Col. J. S. McCannell, M.D., O.B.E., is spending leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. McCannell, 1033 Yates Street, after four years of service overseas with the R.C.A.M.C.

Lt. Col. McCannell, in private medical practice here before the war, served in England, Italy and northwest Europe. He went overseas with the 13th Field Ambulance and from January, 1944, was in command of the 24th Field Ambulance Brigade.

Lt. Col. McCannell's wife, who lived in Fredericton, N.B., while he was overseas, met him in Montreal and came back to Victoria with him.

Search Continues For Missing Girl

City detectives remained without further clues today to the whereabouts of 18-year-old Phyllis Stroud, last seen shortly after 11 p.m. on V-J Day.

At that time, Miss Stroud was seen on Douglas Street, near the Haultain bus terminal. She was wearing a flowered print dress, short grey jacket and red and white canvas shoes, and she carried a large black purse.

Liquor Ration Awaits Commissioner's Return

It will not be known until after Monday when W. F. Kennedy, liquor board chairman, returns from the conference of liquor board chairmen and distillers in the east, whether B.C. will follow the lead of other provinces and increase the liquor quota for September.

Attorney-General R. L. Maitland, under whose department the liquor control board comes, said that he had no comment to make on the possibility of an increase in liquor. "I have no desire to usurp the powers of the board," he said.

A doubling of the ration in Ontario was forecast unofficially by the Globe and Mail although it was said that an agreement had been made by the liquor commissioners not to make any official announcements until Sept. 4.

Langford Ratepayers

Owing to uncertainty of expenditures, ratepayers of Langford decided against the inauguration of home economics study for the higher grades, at a special meeting held in the school.

Department of Public Works will be informed that taxpayers wish the new sidewalk to be extended from the school to the Bayne's property on the north side of the highway.

Family Relations Course to Open

First full course on home and family relations to be given in Victoria schools will be initiated at Victoria High School this fall for grades 11 and 12, H. L. Campbell, municipal inspector of schools, said today.

The course will involve a certain amount of sex education but it is not in itself a specific course in sex education, Mr. Campbell said and added that no such course was anticipated in the near future.

The course to be offered is one prescribed by the Department of Education. For several years units in a number of home economics have dealt with home and family relations but this will be the first full course, he said.

In commenting on a Vancouver report that H. N. MacCorkindale, superintendent of schools, had said sex education, handled properly and scientifically might eventually be taught in Vancouver schools, Mr. Campbell said, "It is my opinion that instruction in sex education should form a part of the regular courses in health and in home economics; until more information is available on the effectiveness of a specific sex education course, I would hesitate to advise the giving of courses solely devoted to that subject."

With regard to the home and family relations course, Mr. Campbell favored the bringing in of specially qualified doctors and nurses for any specific aspects of sex education.

Island's Private Schools Have Diversified Program

Private schools have a diversified program, but with an order of priority on studies, religion, games and extra mural activities. Studies are paramount, as that is the primary purpose of the school, the others being corollaries to them. Studies teach the boys to know; religion teaches them to love the fundamental truth; games to exercise the truth in life and to develop a healthy body for a healthy, truth-loving mind; and the activities grouped arbitrarily together under the heading "extra-mural" enlarge their vision, also exercise the truth in practical life, and make their studies real and familiar to them.

The private school believes the first truth in studies is that only by regular progression from one step to the next can one acquire a knowledge of what all should know to succeed in life materially, spiritually, or any other way. This is known in mathematics, but is equally true in all other subjects, though less easily discernible. To gain knowledge, the private school contends that one needs instruments. Even those who scorn private school education for that of the most utilitarian, technical or earthy description, realize the need of instruments to gain the practical knowledge they seek. Night schools for workers exist for that purpose. Their foundations, their funda-mentals are reading, writing and arithmetic.

The studies of private schools are merely extensions of these principles. The boys are taught to read, not only to recognize the mere words used, but to recognize phrases, sentences, paragraphs, essays and styles; to discriminate between a good and bad style, a good and bad essay, a good and bad paragraph, and so on, and by familiarity with what is well written, to grow to like it, and to emulate it, too. By such reading the boy's vocabulary is enlarged and his ideas are not only increased, but defined and improved, so that no matter if he is a material success in life or not, his love and knowledge of literature will enrich his life and give it depth.

Cabinet to Discuss Stopping Lotteries

The question of stopping lotteries and raffles that have been running unabated for war charities during the past few years is one that will probably come up before the cabinet soon, Hon. R. L. Maitland, attorney-general, said today.

He said he had no intention of bringing the matter up until he had given serious consideration to what policy to recommend within his own department.

"It is a question of jurisdiction," he said. "Through the provincial police, we enforce the laws in rural and unorganized districts, but the cities have their own law enforcement. During the war years, certificates permitting such lotteries for war charities have been issued by federal authority and we did not interfere."

40 Acres Fairbridge Land to be Cleared

Forty acres of logged-off land at the Fairbridge Farm will be cleared for cultivation, bringing to about 280 acres the tillable land on the 1,028-acre property.

Harry Mattin is handling the work, and has already started operations.

Cwac Killed at Work

HALIFAX (CP) — Pte. R. Henry, C.W.A.C., of Calgary, died in the Cogswell Street Millinery today as the result of injuries received while working at Cathedral Barracks two days ago. Pte. Henry, a motor mechanic, was injured when a piece of machinery fell on him.

A military court of inquiry will be held to determine the cause of the accident.

Permission has been granted the B.C. Electric Railway Co. by order-in-council to construct two spur tracks from their line within the municipality of Burnaby, under the Railway Act. The first spur will be constructed immediately along Jutland Street.

Acts of Abraham Example For Today's Peace Seekers

Scripture: Genesis Chapters 12-15
By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

TWO STORIES of Abraham stand out from the crude and primitive times in which he lived, revealing such a high conception of human motives and action that they speak to our own times clearly. The problem of world peace and security might be said to be that of catching up with Abraham.

The first story is of the strife between the men of Abraham and those of his kinsman, Lot, over pastures and watering places. That Abraham was no coward or appeaser was shown plainly a little later, but he was a man of great unselfishness, willing to sacrifice his own interests if peace could be maintained. In this spirit he said to Lot: "You take the left and I will go to the right; or you go to the right and I will go to the left. Let there be no strife between me and thee, and between my her-men and thy her-men; for we be brethren."

Lot might have been a brother but he didn't reciprocate Abraham's spirit of brotherhood.

When he saw that the plain of the Jordan was well watered everywhere, he chose what he thought was the better and more lush country. Like all blindly selfish men, who think only of their own profit, he made a bad choice; and that Abraham's unselfishness and love of peace were not impulsive of the moment, but expressions of his settled character, was soon displayed in the second episode, when Lot got into trouble.

"Lot pitched his tent toward Sodom," without for a moment thinking of the trouble he was getting into when he cast his lot with that wicked city. The trouble began some time before the threat of destruction and Lot's flight from the city. In a war in which a number of kings were involved, the King of Sodom was defeated, and Lot was carried off a captive, and all his goods were seized.

When word was brought to Abraham, he armed his trained servants to the number of over 300, pursued the kings who had gone off with the captives and the loot; and partly by courageous daring, partly by strategy, attacking by night, defeated and pursued them, recapturing not only Lot, but all the people they had carried off from Sodom, and all the goods. The man of peace could be a terrific fighter if he was forced to fight—just as men of peace have been the most terrible and efficient fighters of today.

Then happened a great and wonderful thing, full of meaning for a world seeking peace today. The King of Sodom was grateful. He said to Abraham: "Give me the persons, and take the goods to thyself." But Abraham refused to accept as much as a shoe-latchet, except only what his warriors had eaten or spent in their campaign.

Dr. Brewing Speaks On Liquor Sunday

"The Church and the Liquor Business" will be the topic for the evening sermon Sunday at Metropolitan United Church when Dr. Willard Brewing of St. George's United Church, Toronto, completes his summer ministry here.

Title of his sermon at the morning service will be: "Religion and Business, Should They Mix?"

Coming Home

F.O. Albert E. Rowe, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Rowe, 208 Robertson Street, is expected home at the beginning of next week after serving overseas for two years with the R.C.A.F. F.O. Rowe was born and educated in Victoria. Flying with the R.C.A.F. Lion Squadron overseas, he made many operational trips over Europe.

150 Receive Aid For Education

A total of 150 applications for aid under the Education of Soldiers' Dependent Children Act have been approved. Hon. H. G. T. Perry, Minister of Education, announced following the second meeting of the commission appointed to administer the act.

Only three applications have been rejected, one because the student applying had not obtained the required educational standard, and the other two because the financial status of the parents did not warrant assistance.

It is expected that further applications will come in from time to time and they will be considered as they are received.

Of those who received aid last year all except four were promoted to a higher grade. Seventeen obtained either complete or partial university entrance standing.

The amendment to the act, which makes a veteran of either war eligible for assistance if he has been resident of the province for five years has already affected 16 families.

It is expected, the minister said, that the change in the residence clause will have a far-reaching effect when the amendment becomes generally known. When school reopens in September principals and welfare agencies will be informed of the change.

R. C. Bracewell, deputy minister of municipal affairs, was appointed a member of the Board of Arbitration under the "Residence and Responsibility Act," by order-in-council. He replaces the late E. H. Bridgman on the board, and will be acting with H. A. Maclean and A. D. Paterson.

If every individual and every nation concerned with the establishment of peace on earth were to say, both in words and in effect: "I want nothing for myself; I care only that all may get their just rights, and that what is best for all may be attained."

It is selfishness on the part of individuals and nations that is most likely to defeat plans for peace. That is why the world needs to catch up with Abraham.

Reg. N. E. Harris SAYS:

The big difference between "saving up," and investing in Life Insurance, is this. By the one you save and save to create an estate; by the other you create an estate immediately you pay your first premium, and then save to maintain it. Won't you think this over seriously, and then —
